▶ MARKET COMMENTARY.

This is our view of how the investment markets performed in 2009.

UK SHARES

The UK equity market, represented by the FTSE All-Share Index, delivered robust returns during 2009 rising 25.0%, as convincing evidence emerged that global trading was improving following a very challenging period. As a result, confidence grew that major internationally focused UK companies will benefit from rising global demand, which improved sentiment towards UK equities.

The Bank of England (BOE) held interest rates at record lows of 0.5% since March and continued its efforts to stimulate economic activity through quantitative easing (creating money electronically to be used for gilt repurchases). Throughout the economic downturn an unprecedented amount of liquidity has been pumped into the financial system via quantitative easing and very low interest rates.

Towards the end of the period, financial markets began to focus on the strength and sustainability of growth and how policy makers will respond as economic data changes. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has assured the markets that stimulus measures will continue for some time yet. However, the markets are still concerned about how policy makers will wind down the economic stimulus.

Economic conditions have been weak over the year, but a recovery in economic activity is beginning to appear. Companies reported generally better than expected profits, though this has been primarily driven by aggressive cost cutting.

OVERSEAS SHARES

Following the extraordinary events which brought the global banking system to its knees in late 2008, during the second quarter of 2009 investors grew increasingly confident that the unprecedented scale of government stimulus packages had succeeded in steering the global economy back towards growth.

Asian and emerging markets moved broadly higher than other regions amid signs that the regions are playing a key role in helping the global economic recovery. The impressive returns (48.9%) delivered by the region's equity markets, represented by the FTSE World Asia Pacific ex Japan Index, during the period reflected the growing economic importance of the region's domestic consumers.

An 84% year-on-year growth in China's car sales for the month of September – at a time when Western markets remained relatively subdued – demonstrated the growing influence of rising domestic consumer spending power.

FIXED INTEREST SECURITIES

Corporate bonds performed very well in 2009. Greater confidence about the global economy's recovery prompted investors to switch from the 'safe haven' of government bonds into credit markets.

Higher-risk corporate bonds especially benefited from improved sentiment as investors chased higher yields, despite signs that defaults had reached record levels. However, government bonds generally delivered disappointing returns, with the gilt market struggling amid concerns over the prospect of large new issues of gilts to fund the rising government deficit.

While corporate bonds no longer offer investors historically high levels of income, it is important to realise that income levels in early 2009 reflected the extraordinary risks investors faced then. During the year, a financial meltdown has been avoided and a 1930s style depression has not materialised. Given this improvement, the better returns offered by credit are still attractive for investors compared to very low gilt yields.

Despite broad signs of improvement in the global economy, a survey from the ratings agency Standard & Poor's (S&P) predicted that the number of European companies defaulting on their obligations is set to remain very high in 2010.

COMMERCIAL PROPERTY

In the last few months of 2009, commercial property prices improved rapidly due to stronger demand from investors and the reluctance of sellers to sell near the bottom of the market. The sustainability of the recovery in property asset prices in 2010 will be allied to the strength of the recovery in the broader economy which at this stage is expected to be modest.

Against this outlook we envisage a divergence in performance between high quality assets with secure tenants in place and those with very short leases or voids which are more exposed to the weak occupier markets. On the investment side, in an increasingly competitive market, managers will need to source stock creatively off market, either by virtue of scale or network of contacts, to achieve relatively favourable pricing.

To see if your policy is eligible for a contractual minimum addition, please refer to your annual bonus statement.

Historic rates of contractual minimum addition (CMA) are:

DEDUCTIONS IN RESPECT OF GUARANTEES AND OPTIONS.

We said we would let you know if there had been any deductions made from the With Profits Sub Fund in the past year to cover the increase in the expected future costs of guarantees and options. Investment conditions were poor in 2008, meaning that we needed to make a deduction of 0.75% of the value of the assets underlying your policy at the end of 2008, to cover the increase in the expected future costs of guarantees and options.

In 2009, market conditions improved and we have seen a significant reduction in the expected future costs of guarantees and options. We will therefore be refunding a portion of the charge taken in 2008 equal to 0.4% of the value of the assets underlying your policy at the end of 2009. Should you decide to come out of With Profits during 2010, then your surrender/transfer value will reflect this refund.

INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT REVIEW 2009.

With Profits investments are currently managed by Legal & General Investment Management, another company within the Legal & General Group, under an agreement which specifies, amongst other things, the fees payable for this service.

Prior to 1 July 2007 the investment management fees charged by Legal & General Investment Management were generally incurred at cost. However, with effect from 1 July 2007, these fees have increased to reflect the typical market rate for this service. In return for the increase in fees, Legal & General Assurance Society has gained the discretion, in certain circumstances, to seek investment management services from companies outside the Legal & General Group.

As part of our 2009 yearly investment management review we are considering new fund managers for some of our investments and may choose to appoint alternative investment managers.

We will publish information about any such decision on our website: www.legalandgeneral.com/with-profits
