Fixed Term Retirement Plan and Pension Annuity

Case Study – Keeping future options open

Susan, 62, retired

Susan would like:

- To make the most of her early years in retirement with holidays, regular trips to the theatre and meals out with friends
- A regular monthly income over a fixed term
- Flexibility to reassess her retirement income plan once she receives State Pension begins at age 67

Susan, 62, has recently retired; she isn't married and doesn't have any children. Susan owns her own home and a flat which she rents out, providing her with a monthly income of £1,100. Susan also has a pension pot of £90,000. Recently, Susan has been considering a Pension Annuity, however she is concerned that interest rates could rise over the next couple of years and thinks that she may get a better annuity rate at a later stage. Instead, she would prefer to defer making the decision for a few years.

Susan has a busy social life; she volunteers for a local charity and enjoys spending time with her friends and family. During her retirement, Susan wants to have holidays abroad, regular trips to the theatre and meals out with friends.

This is not a consumer advertisement.
It is intended for professional advisers only.

Suggested action

Susan could use her £90,000 pension pot to take out a Fixed Term Retirement Plan to top up her monthly income for five years.

Based on Susan's circumstances, her financial adviser recommends that she would need an extra £9,000 over five years until she begins receiving her State Pension.

Using Susan's £90,000 pension pot, her financial adviser recommends a Fixed Term Retirement Plan as it can provide her with a regular monthly income over five years.

As the plan approaches maturity, Susan is diagnosed with diabetes; her financial adviser suggests she could consider a Pension Annuity, as she would now be eligible for an enhanced rate due to her health condition.

take 25% tax-free cash £22,500 place £67,500 in a Fixed Term Retirement Plan for five years income of £9,000 per year for five years and a £34,590 guaranteed maturity value

Year five: by placing her maturity value of £34,590 into a Pension Annuity, Susan could receive £2,777 per year for life. This annuity has a guaranteed minimum payment period of five years.

Benefits for Susan

- Susan has the security of knowing that she will receive £9,000 every year for five years.
- Alongside her other income, Susan can afford to plan holidays abroad, trips to the theatre and meals out with friends.
- She knows that she will receive a guaranteed maturity value of £34,590 from the outset.
- Flexibility to assess her options at maturity and adapt her retirement plan if required, to suit her needs at that time.
- Susan has the ability to take a maximum of three withdrawals and cash if her circumstances change before the end of the term. The withdrawals must be a minimum of £5,000.

Risks

Susan's financial adviser also tells her about the risks involved with the product:

- Once the term of Susan's plan comes to an end and she is paid the maturity value, set at outset, she will receive no more income.
- The Fixed Term Retirement Plan does not pay income for life. If Susan uses the maturity value to provide her with further income, the value will not be enough to provide the same level of income that she was receiving during the plan term.
- Annuity rates can go up and down depending on investment conditions at the time Susan buys. Susan could find the income we quote her may be higher or lower if she waits for a change in investment market conditions.
- Depending on the annuity payment options Susan chooses, she could find the effect of inflation over time leaves her less well off than she'd expected.
- We may request a report from Susan's doctor after her annuity income starts to check any medical or lifestyle information she has given us. If we find the information provided by Susan's doctor does not support the medical or lifestyle information she has given us and the annuity income we're paying her is too high, we may reduce what we are paying her. Susan's income will not reduce any lower than our standard annuity rate. We will also take back any overpayments from Susan.

Get a quote today

Just access one of the major adviser portals at legalandgeneral.com/adviser/annuities/quoting-and-portals/

Or speak to the Intermediary Annuity Support Team for support on your annuity quotes and applications.

Call
0345 071 0040

Email
broker.annuityquotes@landg.com

Visit
legalandgeneral.com/adviser/annuities

Call charges will vary. Calls may be recorded and monitored. Lines open Monday to Friday, 9am to 5pm. If you're contacting us by email, please remember not to send any personal, financial or banking information, because email is not a secure method of communication.

Please note this example is not real, it is for illustration purposes only. Correct at the market condition of 18/09/2026.

Legal and General Assurance Society Limited.
Registered in England and Wales No. 00166055.
Registered office: One Coleman Street, London EC2R 5AA.

We are authorised by the Prudential Regulation Authority and regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority and the Prudential. Regulation Authority.

Q0058669 09/26 LG007006